The American Society of Nephrology (ASN) Quality and Patient Safety (QPS) task force, chaired by Amy W. Williams, MD, advances ASN's commitment to providing high-quality care to patients and to raising awareness of patient safety issues for all professionals administering care to kidney patients. For the Choosing Wisely campaign, each of ASN's 10 advisory groups contributed expertise to the task force to ensure it addressed all areas of nephrology practice, and the society's president, public policy board and council also provided insights. The QPS task force centered its focus on five items most likely to positively impact and influence optimal patient care. The final list of five items was unanimously approved by the ASN public policy board and council.
